

Help the families of children and young people in your setting better understand and support their child's behaviour at home

Family Engagement Training Courses

When it comes to supporting behaviour, a shared consistent approach between you and your staff and families at home is incredibly effective, but it's not always easy to achieve.

With our CPD accredited online Family Engagement Training course you'll learn how to build positive and effective relationships with the families of children and young people in your setting, and how to support them with behaviour at home, through flexible, engaging training and My Family Coach resources.

You'll gain all the knowledge and skills you need to build that essential shared understanding of behaviour as communication, and support families with effective strategies they can use at home, so every individual receives the best possible all-round support.

Family Engagement Training

Online course

Who is the course for?

The Family Engagement Training course is for anyone who works directly with parents and carers. This course is also suitable for senior leaders looking to develop family engagement and positive behaviour support for families at an organisational level.

We recommend that course participants already have Team Teach Level One certification as this course builds on the Team Teach methodology. However, we understand that this may not be possible for all participants. If you do not have current Team Teach training, we recommend spending extra time to become familiar with the models and language used.

This is a self-guided online training course allowing you to learn at your own pace from the comfort of your home or workplace. We recommend you complete all the training modules within six weeks. This includes a range of activities to support your learning and tasks to try in your own setting.

This course will help you to...

- ✓ understand the challenges and opportunities when working with families, including barriers to communication, negative perceptions, and ways to increase parent/carers engagement
- ✓ understand the Team Teach approach and how it can help families understand and support their child's behaviour
- ✓ identify next steps for improving accessibility to information and consider the effectiveness of current parental engagement strategies for supporting children's behaviour
- ✓ successfully facilitate family workshops with parents and carers, using My Family Coach supporting resources, underpinned by the Team Teach philosophy and approach to behaviour.

To support you with on-going parental engagement, you'll also receive:

- A family workshop presentation slide deck
- A package of supporting resources for delivering family workshops
- Access to My Family Coach resources and journal app

You'll learn about...

- ✓ the context of your particular setting and develop a toolkit of ideas and strategies you can use to improve communication with the families you work with
- ✓ building trusting relationships, the barriers and challenges you face, and ways you can change perceptions
- ✓ ways to diffuse conflict and create spaces for emotional conversations and how to work with parents and carers so they feel part of the decision making for their child
- ✓ ways to personalise the family workshops you deliver to meet the needs of families in your setting to help them better understand their child's behaviour.
- ✓ how to use verbal and non-verbal communication, positive listening and learning, and diversion and de-escalation strategies and share these approaches with families.

Training consists of:

Being a trainer in Team Teach I was very excited for the course to be developed for parents. There are many short courses out there for families, however, I was pleased to see the Team Teach Family Engagement Training course maintained the values Team Teach uphold. It provided an informative and accessible foundation for families to begin to understand why behaviours of concern occur, and furthermore, what potential positive strategies they can start to implement.

Kent County Council, Short Breaks

It was a privilege to be part of this training. The content was tailored to ensure all trainees were confident in accessing and delivering information relevant to their setting. The trainer was fluent in sharing her knowledge and expertise and the sharing of her experiences made the training very easy to listen to and helped to bring things to life.

I would recommend the course as it provides structure and a theoretical perspective that can be presented in an accessible way to enable families to feel better able to support their children and strengthen their relationships.
